Trotsky — Only Right by the Book

The Man Who Was Late at a Funeral

Leon Trotsky, the old Russian Bolshevik, assassinated Wednesday in Mexico City, was the original man "who knew he was right but couldn't prove it." Trotsky, a doctrinaire Bolshevik, rose to be co-ruler of Russia with Nikolai Lenin, held supreme power for 10 years — then lost it and spent the rest of his life a hunted exile from his native land, because he could not adapt book theory to reality, because he believed in Bolshevism first and in Russia second.

Few Changes in Officials for Election

Election Judges, Clerks Remain About Same for Vote Aug. 27

The Hempstead County Democratic Central Committee in its pre-election meeting Wednesday at city hall announced that practically the same list of judges and clerks who served in the first election here August 12, will serve in the one coming up Tuesday.

Chairman W. S. Atkins said that due to various reasons the following changes had to be made:

Deputy Townships: Box 1-A, Judges: Sanky Callieut, Logan Bailey, Lawrence Martin, Clerks: Willis Smith, Ed Thrash; Alternate Judges: Roy Anderson, Tom Kinser, Rob Jones; Alternate Clerks: L. G. Armstrong, J. W. Perkins; Guards: Bob Campbell, Hugh Jones.

Extra Set—Hope Ward 2: Judges: Ben Southward, Henry Taylor, E. N. Bacon; Clerks: Randolph Crutchfield, Luther Rogers; Alternate Judges: Paul Briant, Sam Simpson, Charles Harell; Alternate Clerks: H. T. Hollinsworth, Herbert Griffin; Guard: G. W. McDowell.

Shover Springs: Judges: H. B. Sanford, R. M. Rogers, J. S. Reed were only changes.

Union:—Judges: George Kinney, Robert Compton, J. D. Webb; Clerks: D. Tollett, Claude Lovelace; Alternate Judges: Lee Woolen, Bynum Clark, Wayman Roberts; Alternate Clerks: C. D. Webb, Robert King, Guard: Sanford Moore.

Goodlet: Judge Verdo Tollet takes place of C. H. Locke, Guard: Guy Green.

Washington Box 2: Judges: E. E. Smalley, G. H. Martin, B. A. Springs; Guard: J. O. Gold.

Ofan: Judges: W. T. Hill, E. Hasel, A. A. Smith; Clerks: Mrs. Bertie Norwood, B. F. Robins; Alternate Judges: J. O. Baber, L. J. Robins; Alternate Clerks: J. T. Smoot, William Baber; Guard: Glad Green.

Decisive Post

At one time railroads had no significance when engineers met on a single track they had to argue it out. Later they were erected midway between tracks and the first engine to pass went forward, while the other backed.

No Charge Put on Him, Says Sheriff Davis

Psychiatrist Expected to Question O'Dwyer Here Friday

R. J. O'Dwyer, Jr., of Texarkana, has been questioned by officers for the last several days in connection with the murder of his 42-year-old wife in her home in Texarkana. Sheriff Davis said Friday that the first reports indicated that 16 persons were killed by British bombers in the Netherlands early Friday morning.

No charges have been filed against Mr. O'Dwyer, the sheriff emphasized. The Texarkana man, questioned in an unannounced jail this week, was at the Hempstead county jail in Hope Friday, but Sheriff Davis said he was not being held here.

From Texarkana The Star learned that a member of the family had told the Texarkana newspaper that Mr. O'Dwyer was on the verge of a nervous breakdown.

It was reported from Texarkana that a psychiatrist from the Arkansas State Hospital was scheduled to question Mr. O'Dwyer in Hope at 3 p.

Aid to Canada Is Protecting Good Customer

More American Money Invested There Than in Any Nation

By MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON — As the joint defense of Canada is rapidly organized, the United States moves to protect its best neighbor. Its second best customer (the United Kingdom is first), and the people nearest to American in manner of life, customs, reading and amusements.

The famous 3000 miles of unfortified frontier is now more than ever a path of communication rather than a barrier. The old distrust that followed the Revolution and the War of 1812, and which has been progressively dying for 125 years, now virtually vanishes between two peoples.

The Canadians, while thoroughly loyal to the British Crown and Empire, are more closely akin to Americans than to Britons. They have the same kind of cities, they developed a new country in the same way, they have the same kind of agricultural and industrial problems, and have created a civilization in the same kind of sweeping continental way.

If the heart lies where the treasure is, then a considerable part of the American heart is concerned over the safety of Canada. About one-third of all investments of U. S. money abroad is in Canada. These investments are greater than the total in any other country.

When Canada had tariff walls, trade was difficult for U. S. manufacturers. So they simply built new plants in Canada.

But many, regardless of tariffs, invested in plants in Canada because there was good money to be made there.

Investment Total Near Two Billions

Official government figures give some astounding totals. Those quoted here mean that U. S. interests had anywhere from 30 to 90 per cent control of the plants in which the money was invested: manufacturing plants, $530,098,000; public utility and transportation, $519,928,000; paper and wood pulp, $268,897,000; mining and smelting, $238,838,000; insurance, $119,746,000; petroleum, $108,138,000; wholesale distributors, $140,300,000; retail distributors, $38,230,000; agriculture, $10,360,000; miscellaneous, $61,641,000.

This makes a total of $1,936,193,000, to which should be added $15,448,000 for American money invested in Newfoundland industries.

The figures for public utilities include $340,000,000 in gas and electric utility undertakings. Copper and nickel predominate in the mining investments.

U. S. money invested in shares in Canadian companies, not for control but merely as an investment upon which to draw dividends, is estimated at $285,000,000.

A total of $446,000,000 in U. S. money is invested in Dominion of Canada bonds. Another $483,000,000 is invested in bonds of the provinces and cities, and $260,000,000 is invested in government guaranteed corporate bonds such as those of the Canadian National Railway. And finally, $221,000,000 is invested in private corporation bonds whose issues were largely floated in the U. S. market.

Canada looms large for the U. S. also as a market and as a source of supply for goods we badly need. In fact, Canada ranks first as the market from which America imports and second as the country to which it sells.

Location Helps Trade With U.

Canada's world trade is exceptionally high in proportion to its population. This is partially because of its very high per capita income.

It imports large amounts of crude products which its own resources can not supply. It also buys many types of manufactured goods its own factories do not make.

For these imports Canada looks naturally to the U. S. because of geographical position and similarity of consumption habits.

Low transportation costs make it

Senator James Pilkinton was the principal speaker at a get-together meeting of the Kiwanis Club members and their ladies at the country club here Thursday night.

Mr. Pilkinton gave an account of the federal defense conference held in Washington, D. C., August 5 and 6, in which he participated.

The text of his speech follows: Mr. President, Members of the Kiwanis Club, and Friends:

"Our government, as set up by the constitution of the United States, is one in which powers are separated. Certain functions are given expressly to the federal government; other functions are reserved to the states and can be exercised by the states alone. It is clear therefore that if American defense is to be made completely adequate without changing the form of American government there must, of necessity, be a degree of very close co-operation between the national government at Washington and the governments of the various states in the American union.

I do not think the national government desires to destroy state rights in rearming America. Rather it seems to me that there is a desire in Washington that each state become a cog-wheel in the program. This is necessary if the program is to move forward effectively and at the same time make unnecessary and detours from the straight and age old path of liberty through state rights.

The Federal-State National Defense Conference which met in Washington, D. C., on August 5 and 6, 1940, was called by the United States Department of Justice to discuss this problem of Federal-State cooperation.

There were many features of the defense program discussed. ### Arrest Negro, Beat Posse to Hope With Him

John Gulley, Negro, Held for Murder of Orville Cox, Falcon

State police raced into Hope with a negro prisoner in a Nevada county murder case Friday morning, outdistancing a crowd of about 20 angry Nevada citizens who followed the officers and their captive nearly to the Hope city line.

Sergeant F. V. Haynie of the Arkansas State Police reported that the prisoner, John Gulley, 24, negro, alias Jack Gulley, of Nevada county, was arrested near Rosston early Friday and had confessed to the robbery-slashing of Orville Cox, 22 of Falcon, south Nevada.

The negro Gulley was taken to an unannounced jail for safe-keeping, under a charge of murder.

The arresting party were: Sergeant Haynie, State Patrolman Harold Porterfield and Roland Humble, and Deputy Sheriff R. L. Vandiver, of Nevada county.

The state police said Deputy Vandiver obtained the information which led to Gulley's arrest near Rosston after an all-night hunt.

According to the state police, Gulley attacked Orville Cox near Bodcaw, Nevada county, late Thursday, slugging him with a crowbar wrapped in a gunny-sack, and robbed him.

Cox, Dies Friday

Badly injured, Cox was taken to Cora Donnell hospital, Prescott, where he died Friday. Funeral arrangements were incomplete Friday, but it was reported they would be handled by the undertaker at Stamps.

Cox, son of a Falcon merchant, was in a truck when the assault occurred. The negro picked up the wounded white man, put him on the bed of the truck, and drove off.

Near Rosston the negro wrecked the truck. Other persons, thinking it was merely a motor accident, helped the negro out of the truck's cab. The negro then suggested that someone help the wounded Cox boy, and they found him in the back end of the truck.

Suspicion was aroused only when someone saw the negro take a bag of money out of the cab. The negro disappeared; the nature of Cox's injuries became apparent—and a search started immediately for his assailant.

A posse of citizens spent Friday night in a man-hunt. Nevada county officers and the state police made their own investigation, meanwhile, culminating in the arrest of the negro, Gulley Friday morning and flight to Hope with the prisoner to elude the angry posse, state police reported.

Sergeant Haynie of the state police told The Star Friday noon that officers had recovered the deadly crowbar; the gunny-sack in which it was wrapped; the bloody clothes which the negro changed after attacking Cox; and about $10 of the money of which Cox was robbed.

Cox was said to usually carry $25 in change, and he had the day's collections for his father's store and possibly some personal money.

"The French government will not bow before this decision," said Baudouin. "It must do everything in its power to save this country from hunger."

Baudouin did not say directly what France planned to do but he did assert: "Whether they wish it or not, whether they understand it or not, the nations of this whole continent are going to be united or a growing solidarity." Churchill, he declared, has taken Britain out of this sphere

Argentina in Crisis Fears Dictatorship

President Ortiz Resigns Following Land Purchase Scandal

BUENOS AIRES —(AP)— Stung by a senate investigation of a high-priced land purchase which "implicated me without naming me," Argentina's ailing president, Robert M. Ortiz, 54, resigned Thursday, precipitating a crisis in which observers feared a possible temporary dictatorship.

Ortiz's supporters began a campaign for a congressional assembly to give him a vote of confidence. A meeting of the Senate and Chamber of Deputies was called for Saturday. A survey showed 123 members out of a possible total of 190 favored rejection of the resignation.

Ortiz was not mentioned in the committee's findings but two of his cabinet members, War Minister General Marquez and Finance Minister Groppe, were attacked.

Army in Conference

The war minister called a meeting with high army officers, apparently deciding to keep firm control of military forces. When the meeting broke up the general issued a communique asking Vice President Castillo, who has been carrying on general executive powers since Ortiz became ill June 3, to permit him to remain in office long enough to defend himself against committee charges.

The controversy arose over purchase of land for El Palomar air-drome at a price of 2,450,303 pesos (about $812,000) which the committee contended was five times its worth, and charged the war and finance ministers were negligent. The committee accused some officials and former officials, including two present and two former members of the Chamber of Deputies, with embezzlement.

Ortiz declared "No one unless he be wicked could so much as insinuate that I have covered or facilitated venality at any time in my lengthy public office."

"I protest and do not accept the intention to link me with this false confabulation of interests which I repudiate and condemn, in which the executive branch of the government has become a target."

Ortiz Incensed

Ortiz asserted that although the land purchase was "a matter which arose outside the confines of my government as the investigation showed," the committee by naming members of his cabinet had "soiled my office."

Under the constitution, executive power passes into the hands of the vice president. But there have been

Bruce Catton Says:

Sole Magnesium Producer in U. S. Target of Quiz

While Bruce Catton vacations, staff members of NEA Service's Washington bureau pinch-hit for him.

By GERRY DICK
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON — The sole United States producer of magnesium is launching a nation-wide advertising and publicity campaign defending its business practices in anticipation of the results of an inquiry by the anti-trust division of the Department of Justice.

Government investigators are delving into the affairs of the Dow Chemical Company, suspecting they may find another pat-pool monopoly which will cause as much excitement as the Bausch & Lomb case.

Bausch & Lomb and a German firm were charged with using their patents to control military and commercial supplies. Their contract allegedly kept American-made optical instruments from British and French buyers.

Price Dropped This Year
It has been hinted there is a similar tie-up between Dow Chemical and Farbenindustrie, German firm. It doesn't seem likely, though that Dow will be arraigned for withholding magnesium from the allies: the greater part of its 1939 output of 5000 tons went to Great Britain.

The ingot price of magnesium was $2 a pound in 1917. This year Dow reduced the price from 30 to 27 cents a pound. So if there has been monkey business, it doesn't appear to have kept prices up.

Magnesium, lightest metal known, has been used for some time in Europe for auto and plane parts. It was introduced into American autos this year, and it is also used here for airplane engine parts which are grease coated.

Its sources are as unlimited as the ocean. It is made from magnesium chloride, which can be taken from sea brine. Hence, military procurement officials place it far down the list of critical war needs.

Government Must Show Tie-Up

Dow has expanded its plant at Midland, Mich., and is building another at Freeport, Tex. Later this year the combined production is expected to be boosted to a rate of 13,000,000 pounds annually.

Fabricated magnesium is made by 30 companies licensed by the Magnesium Development Corp., whose members hold patents on fabricating techniques. Aluminum Company and General Anine & Film Corp., two-thirds of which is owned by Swiss interests, jointly control both this patent pool and its licensee, American Magnesium Corp.

If the government discloses there is a conspiracy to fix prices and restrain production, it will have to show Dow has entered into cross agreements with the patent holders who control fabrication.

TO THE FREE DEMOCRATIC VOTERS OF HEMPSTEAD COUNTY

I COME before you soliciting your support in this campaign for the office of Circuit Clerk, as a native son of Hempstead County, and one whose people have lived before him. I have served the past seven years as deputy in this office, performing the duties and doing the actual work, and by reason of experience and familiarity with its requirements, I know that I am qualified to make you a good Circuit Clerk.

THOSE of you who have had business at the Court House have at all times found me there, eager to serve your requests and demands with impartial courtesy and efficiency. On my record as deputy in this office, and the proof of my qualifications by having actually done the work, I am asking you to promote me by electing me Circuit Clerk, that I may enjoy the opportunity of further serving you efficiently and well.

AS PROOF of the clean and independent campaign I have made, Cecil Weaver and Arthur Anderson, my opponents in the first race, have both endorsed my candidacy and are urging the voters to support me for this office, in the public press.

AS A Democrat, I believe in the free unrestricted choice of candidates for office by the people. I am not the candidate of any political dictator and my name will not be found on any printed ballot handed out before the election by a ring or organization, attempting to control your choice and vote. As a free man, appealing to free men and women of historic Hempstead County, I most earnestly solicit your vote and support for Circuit Clerk in the Democratic primary on August 27, 1940.

Respectfully submitted,

SERIAL STORY

MURDER INCOGNITO

BY NORMAN KAHL

COPYRIGHT, 1940, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY: The officers catch Rhoda at the house. Later, O'Leary inspects the study again, finds two books misplaced. He calls the police, orders the guests to be at the house that night. "I believe I know who murdered Martin Saylor!"

CHAPTER XI
SERGEANT CARROLL sensed, when he stepped into the Saylor study that night, that the involuntary guests were not in the most joyful of moods. O'Leary had not yet arrived. Dale Appleby was being as gracious as his nervousness permitted.

Rhoda Waters sat by herself, in a large overstuffed chair, which had been arranged earlier by Lieutenant O'Leary to face Saylor's desk in the corner of the room. A divan and several occasional chairs had also been lined up, and the other guests sat there now in glowering silence.

Carroll was relieved when O'Leary finally appeared. Following the lieutenant were two uniformed officers, and between them walked the sullen Riggs, chauffeur for the late Martin Saylor.

Those in the study fixed their attention on Riggs, who refused to look up from the floor. O'Leary directed the officers to seat Riggs in a chair on the north side of the room. Both policemen stood nearby. O'Leary went to the doorway to speak to Willows, the butler, and in a few minutes, half a dozen servants trooped into the room. Diffidently, they looked at the guests and then seated themselves in a row behind the others.

Slowly, O'Leary walked to the desk and sat down in Saylor's swivel chair. He turned on the desk lamp and leaned both elbows on top of the desk.

"I wanted you all to be here tonight partly because there are a few more gaps I want to fill in, and there are a few more questions," He looked at Rhoda. "Miss Waters, you were about to leave town this afternoon because, as you said, you wanted to meet Mr. Appleby later in New York and be married. That isn't true, is it?"

Rhoda jumped to her feet. "What do you mean?"

"I mean you were afraid of because you were afraid—afraid of what might happen if you stayed. Isn't that right?"

All the color drained from Rhoda's cheeks and her fists were tightly drawn. Dale had clasped her by the shoulders and was frowning. "That isn't true," she screamed. "You know that isn't true. I have nothing to fear. Not from you or anybody."

O'Leary sighed. "Please don't

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Those Who Have Fallen Into Great Depths Can Find Salvation In God

Text: II Samuel 12:13-14; Psalms 51:1-3, 9-13; 32:5

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.

Editor of Advance

A man of generous spirit, noble thoughts and virtuous deeds may none the less be capable of succumbing to gross temptations and once caught in the coils of sin he may descend to shabby and even criminal things. All this is strikingly illustrated in the history of David, the shepherd boy and psalm-singer who became king of Israel, and particularly in the sordid and tragic story that lies back of this lesson.

David, contrary to his usual character, was staying at home while Joab was leading the army in the field against a menacing enemy. If he had been out, where he ought to have been leading his troops, the tragedy might never have occurred. The allurements of a beautiful woman, whom he had seen from the roof where he had gone for the siesta, proved sufficient to entice David into adultery. Then, to cover up the innocent husband, Uriah, should be put in the thick of the battle and then deserted as to make sure of his death.

With the husband out of the way, David married Bathsheba, for whom and for whose child he evidently had a very sincere love, but the foul deed he had committed was by no means wiped out. The child died, and a year afterward Nathan, the prophet, dared to rebuke David in a plain and exceedingly courageous way.

Nathan's rebuke was ingenious as well. He told the story of a rich man who had everything, but who had nevertheless stolen the ewe lamb of a poor neighbor. What, he asked David, should be done with the man who would do such a contemptible thing?

David denounced him and declared him worthy of death, and it was then that Nathan, pointing his finger at the king, declared, "Thou art the man." Here again, however, that finest quality in David came to light. He might have destroyed Nathan, but he acknowledged the greatness of his guilt and confessed his sin.

Whether or not he wrote the 51st Psalm, in which the writer calls for God's mercy and pleads to be cleansed from his sin, we do not know. But much in this Psalm would have applied to David's case, particularly where he says, "I know my transgressions and my sin is ever before me." The Psalm is a clean and noble prayer for salvation from sin and from past wrong. "Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me."

If the Bible is a book of sin and tragedy—in this case, of adultery and foul murder—the Bible is a book that is magnificent in its revelation of forgiveness and in its teaching that even those who have fallen to the greatest depths can find restoration and salvation if they seek God in the humility of sincere and true repentance.

Birds of a Feather

What kind of an alliance is this? In New Jersey several hundred members of the Ku Klux Klan are reported to be gathering with several hundred German-American Bund members at Camp Nordland, the Bund's 200-acre camp.

Klan officials denied that there was any merger in sight of the two organizations—they met together, well, just because they met together.

The Klansmen were met by the inoffensive Augustus Klappert, successor to Fritz Kuhn, now unfortunately prevented from attending by the fact that he is in jail. Bund "storm troopers" took charge of things and made the sheeted Klansmen welcome. English was spoken.

What sort of a connection, if any, between these two organizations is suggested by this meeting, we can't imagine. Will Father Coughlin, for instance, who views the Nazi Bund with large toleration, welcome also to his arms the Catholic-baiting Klans? Does the Klan, whose origins, and even whose later development, were at least American, now welcome to its bosom devotees of a foreign system? Will the swastika be sewed on the Klan nightshirt, and Nazi "storm troopers" swish about in trailing robes of white?

What common ground can be found for organizations of so diverse origins, so utterly different antecedents and apparent objects? There must be such a common ground, for it is birds of a feather, we are told, which flock together.

It seems possible to find only one: hatred.

The German government to which the Bund defers got its start by peddling hatred of groups. The Klan did the same. Today they may not even untie on precisely the same groups. But this they have in common—they build upon hatred, they exploit hatred, they create and inflame hatred for their own ends.

America has no time for this kind of nonsense today.

We have a big job on our hands. We have a splendid, beautiful country, and a free way of life to defend. We propose to defend it.

We have no ears for those who would make a profession and a calling of inciting hatred that would disunite and enfeeble us.

America belongs to all of us: to Protestant and Jew and Gentile and Catholic and those without defined religious belief; to white and black; to rich and poor and all the millions who struggle daily for their bread with no wish but to enjoy it in peace and quietude.

For the stirrers-up or strife and distrust and hatred there is no room today, nor is there need for any organizations but those devoted to the people, the people, and for the people—all of them.

Are You Superstitious About Dreams?

By RUTH FARRAR
NEA Special Correspondent

NEA Special Correspondent

If you dreamed of a red bull last night, you will find money. If you dreamed of a fire, you will be extremely angry today.

Millions of people, believing dreams have something to do with future events, daily consult their dream books. Others, who place no faith in such instruction, find amusement in "interpreting" dreams.

Here are some of the dream superstitions taken from the large collection of the University of Oklahoma:

To dream of seeing an angel is good; to dream of being one is better; to dream of speaking to one is of evil significance.

If you leave your dishwater in the pan overnight, you will dream of the devil.

"Friday night's dream, on Saturday told,"

Will always come true, no matter how old.

Put a dreamer's hand in cold water to find out what he is dreaming about.

What you dream of while lying on your right side will come true.

If you dream of a wedding, you will hear of a death; if you dream of a death, you will hear of a wedding.

To dream of muddy water is a sign of trouble.

To dream of nails is a sign your reputation will be attacked.

To dream of a lion means your courage and hope will return to you.

To dream of being caught while committing a crime means that sure temptation will come to you.

To dream of a pipe is a sign you will terminate a business deal successfully.

To dream of war foretells an inheritance.

To dream of snakes means you will have trouble with your enemies.

The first night you sleep under a new quilt, what you dream will come true.

If you place your shoes at an angle of 45 degrees and enter your bed backward, you will dream of your future home.

That individuals are "warned" in dreams is the belief of people in every walk of life. A strange incident of this nature recently was reported by Mrs. Mary Johannis, of Toledo, Ohio.

Mrs. Johannis's dream that her son's bed was on fire was so vivid that she awoke and rushed, panic-stricken, to the boy's room. She was just in time to save him from flames that were enveloping the bed.

Carol Bruce Cleans Up

She Can Hardly Wait to Get to Hollywood

By HERMAN ALLEN
AP Feature Service

NEW YORK — Carol Bruce always has counted on the best but prepared for the worst. That way, says the 20-year-old sensation of "Louisiana Purchase," you're never disappointed.

And that way she has become in three years the hit of Broadway and the vaudeville money-maker's show.

That way she got two offers from Hollywood. (She hasn't decided yet which to take.)

Carol lives in New York with her father, who is a dress salesman, her mother and her sister Marilyn, 12. Her voice is husky—just the thing for two songs she sings as the party girl in "Louisiana Purchase."

The part is something of a libel. Carol doesn't drink anything but a little light wine once in a while, and she doesn't smoke.

"Before they brought the show into New York the part was a lot more well, you might say suggestive," Carol says. "I asked Buddy (Buddy De Sylva, the producer, whether he could not clean it up a little, and he did."

Carol's own story.

"I never doubted that I'd get to the top in show business. After I got there—well, almost there, anyway—I was sure I'd go to Hollywood."

"I went to work when I was 13 in a ladies' ready to wear shop, after school."

"When I was 17 I got a job modeling clothes. I'd gotten interested in singing and one day I went up to see the one man I give the most credit for starting me on my career."

"That was Nat Brunloff."

"Nat ran the orchestra at one of the big radio stations. He let me sing with him sometimes and steered me on to a lot of private parties and club shows."

"Then I got a job at the Mt. Royal hotel in Montreal."

"That fall—1938—I went on a trip

out west to Louisville and Chicago.

"Well, I know—that's not really out west, but I'm just a New York girl and that's as far west as I've ever been. I can hardly wait to get out to Hollywood."

"Next fall I got a job with George White's Scandals and later with Lawrence Schvab's 'Nice Goin', which closed in Boston."

"I was at a party and Buddy De Sylva was there, too. Some body asked me to sing, so I did—'St. Louis Blues'."

The Ten Commandments are known also as the Decalogue.

BARBS

News comes from the White House on the heels of the latest poll that President Roosevelt is allergic to straw votes.

Prime Minister Churchill warns the House of Commons that the danger to Britain has not yet passed and if they don't believe it, they can just look out the window.

Dance bands are swinging all the old ballads and spirituals. "They're Hanging Danny Deever in the Morning" should be a natural.

British leader calls Nazi propaganda leaflets tedious, boring and bald. The American would stream-line it merely as hokey.

Spunky British Carry on

Perfers Bombs to Peaceful Depression

By PAUL MANNING
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
England is town in the Northeast—this northeast industrial town is Hatfield, England. Everyone has spent 13 of the last 14 nights in air raid shelters. Last night was no exception.

Standing on a ridge on the outskirts of this city I saw German bombers in waves of three unload their deadly cargo then head for home.

There was no dive bombing, no armada of 50 to 80 planes screaming down in close formation attack on a British convoy making its slow way into a southeastern port.

But there was a certainty of approach which stamped this raid as something entirely different from Dover.

For the men who were flying these bombers were not rank amateurs fresh from 40 hours of ground school. They were veterans of Poland, Norway and London—if bombing technique is any criterion.

Searchlights Are Targets

Wheeling in, the bombers approached their objectives—the shipyards, gas tanks, coal works and steel plants.

Anti-aircraft guns set up a terrific barrage.

Clint 65 billion candlepower search lights pierced the skies; one fastened on a Junkers 58. From darkness above, a Messerschmitt or Heinkel plummeted down and began pouring tracer bullets into the beam. The light went out.

A series of explosions followed. One heavy bomb, missing a railroad bridge demolished two medium sized buildings. The impact was so great windows within a mile were shattered.

Suddenly a terrific detonation red-dened the sky, then the explosions stopped as the bombers dived back out across the North Sea. Military damage was slight: one school house crippled, one water main smashed, several houses demolished. A 19-year-old air raid warden was killed by spraying machine gun bullets.

No Panic, No One Leaves

But in this town, the destruction of a row of shanty dwellings gave some idea what London's east side may be in for.

A number of people were killed by one bomb. But when every person in the village viewed the damage the next morning, so complete it looked as if Hollywood had constructed a stage set to film another version of "Wings", there was no panic or desire to flee the town.

Bombing is no new experience to this town suffered air raids. Bombs dropped on industrial plants and men were killed.

There are still tablets on the walls of factories commemorating the sacrifices of these men.

Unemployment the Big Fear
Unemployment and malnutrition are not new experiences. This town is an illustrated footnote to British working class history.

It has passed through every boom and slump since the first coal mine was opened in 1618. But between the two evils this town fears unemployment more than bombs. Particularly so at this moment when the armament program has boomed the industry throughout Britain and every able male is working in the shipyards and steel plants. And now with money coming in once again the people are beginning to get some of their kick back.

They're starting to lose the dull look of the underfed.

The main street of the shopping center is crowded as families buy new clothes.

Women are getting permanent waves, their first in 10 years.

But what is going to happen when the boom ends?

That is the question housewives ask one another as they prow through the crushed remains of a neighbor's house.

Designer Aided by Bookkeeping

Paris Downfall Has Dumped Style in U. S. Lap

By AMY PORTER

AP Fashion Writer

I f you are a girl in search of a career, very likely you're considering fashion designing.

You've read a lot about the bright future opening up for American designers, now that Paris is in eclipse. The names of successful designers are in the news. They're the current glamour girls of the business world. You hear that stores and manufacturer intend to encourage young talent. (They must mean you.)

The fashion stage is all set for your entrance.

But what is your cue? Where do you begin? Shall you go to a training school, or get an apprentice job? Shall you stay at home or go to a training school, or get an apprentice job? Shall you stay at home or go to New York?

Top designers disagree on the answer to the first question, but to the second they all reply: "Go to New York."

Of course it won't hurt if you know a thing or two before you tackle New York. Anything you can learn about sewing, or art, or bookkeeping—yes, bookkeeping—will be all to the good. And somewhere along the line you need some experience, most designers say.

In New York you can attend any one of several design schools or one of the free garment trades training schools, or you can get a job in a factory.

Favor Factory Experience

Out of 12 top-ranking designers interviewed, nine voted for factory apprenticeship. Their own success is based on the knowledge of fabrics, of cutting and fitting, that they gained in factory work-rooms.

The other three, very successful, too can't sew, nor cut, nor fit. One said, "An architect doesn't have to know how to lay bricks, so why should a designer have to know how to sew?"

One Derby is a believer in work room experience. She advises, "Get a factory job. Clip threads or run a fagoting machine. Never mind if you earn only $10 or $15 a week at first. You're learning the very fundamentals of the clothes industry."

Philip Mangone, coat and suit designer, agrees. He was an apprentice in his father's New York tailor shop when he was 11 years old. His father tied a too-big thimble on his finger, and said, "Now, sew."

Clothed His Family

At 13, Philip was making coats and suits for his mother, six brothers, and two sisters. Then he worked as a fitter in a store, until he decided to

'Mere Man' Seeks Comfort

And Gets It in Furniture's Modern Trend

By MARGARET KERNODLE

AP Feature Service Writer

Men prefer modern furniture. That's what the department store salespeople are saying. It's an important statement, too.

Maybe it's the reason why modern furniture this fall is not only a favorite in the popular-price list, but also a definite influence on period furniture like Regency and 18th century adaptations.

Since there's masculine influence even in such things as fall fashions in women's clothes, perhaps the furniture designers saw fall, 1940, as the right time to bring the modern and the period definitely closer in design, in decorative schemes and in price.

It's Useful

Anyhow, modern furniture is having its way at last. And its way is towards functionalism, simplicity and space-saving. And its lines are less harsh than formerly.

Certainly it's true that as fast as modern furniture has edged away from complete functionalism, period furniture has leaned toward functionalism. There are decided hints of Regency in modern chairs and tables.

All this is going to cut shorter that long search of ours for good looking, comfortable furniture (regardless of period) to fit our homes and our budgets.

It ought to be easier than ever to be a designer.

"I just wrote a letter and said, 'I have never done designing, please let me try,'" he said.

That was in 1905, when there was no such thing as a full-length coat for a woman. Suits, yes, and capes, shawls and jackets, but no coats. Mangone designed coats and they sold.

His experience points another moral for young designers. He thought of something new—full-length coats—and the success of this idea started him on his way.

The Idea's the Thing

Nearly every designer gains first recognition by sponsoring a new idea.

Dorothy Cox had her first success with tailored dinner suits. Helen Cook man was first to take tweed from the country into town. She launched Lady Chesterfield town coats in tweed and with huge success.

After you've been through the mill, studying and working, you'll be ready for your first designing job—at from $25 to $50 a week. If your product is good, the sky's the limit.

place a favorite antique in a room of adaptations either of the same period or a similar period, or even to combine it with the modern.

Another advantage for average pocketbooks is the increasing number of individual pieces to be bought and added to later.

The day of very large sets that had to be bought at once is on the wane.

9 Men Die as Loaded Army Bomber Falls

Texarkana and McRory Men Are Among the Listed Dead

DENVER, Colo. —(AP)— Two officers and seven enlisted men were killed in the crash and explosion of a heavily loaded army plane on a bombing range 43 miles east of Denver Thursday night.

The dead included Sergeant Truman E. McRory, Ark., and Private Charles E. Kelly, of Texarkana, Ark., the radio operator.

Flares were dropped early Friday from searching planes which located the wreckage after the bomber failed to return from a routine bombing practice assignment.

British Bomb

At three thickly populated London suburbs in early morning attacks. Military sources said that British guns fired a "few rounds" at German cannons bombarding the important channel port of Dover from the French coast.

Although vans began moving the belongings of Dover's populace from what has now become the front-line city, military sources declared that Nazi guns—which they figured might be mobile "12-inchers" mounted on railroad cars—had not made the British give up Dover as a war base.

Homes and public buildings were blasted by Nazi explosives in the raid on London and delayed action when a bomb burst in one roped off area several hours later, but casualties were comparatively few.

Italy Gives Warning

ROME —(AP)— Clear warning that Italy will invade Greece if the British occupy a strategic Greek island was sounded by a high fascist source Friday.

Italy is not going to let the British occupy any Greek islands and if the British move into Greece we will do the same," this source declared, in response to rumors that Britain was considering occupation of the islands of Crete and Corfu.

This comment was made as a fierce drive and take air and naval war raged from the eastern Mediterranean to the shores of the Indian ocean. Intensive bombardment of a British convoy escorted by two destroyers was carried out by Italian planes in the eastern Mediterranean, an Italian communique said and that Alexandria, Britain's naval base in Egypt was attacked.

Two to 300 cups of tea a day are sampled by London's only woman tea-taster. None of the tea is drunk; it is only sipped for the taste.

To the Voters of Hempstead County

Thank you for the splendid vote that you gave me on August 13th.

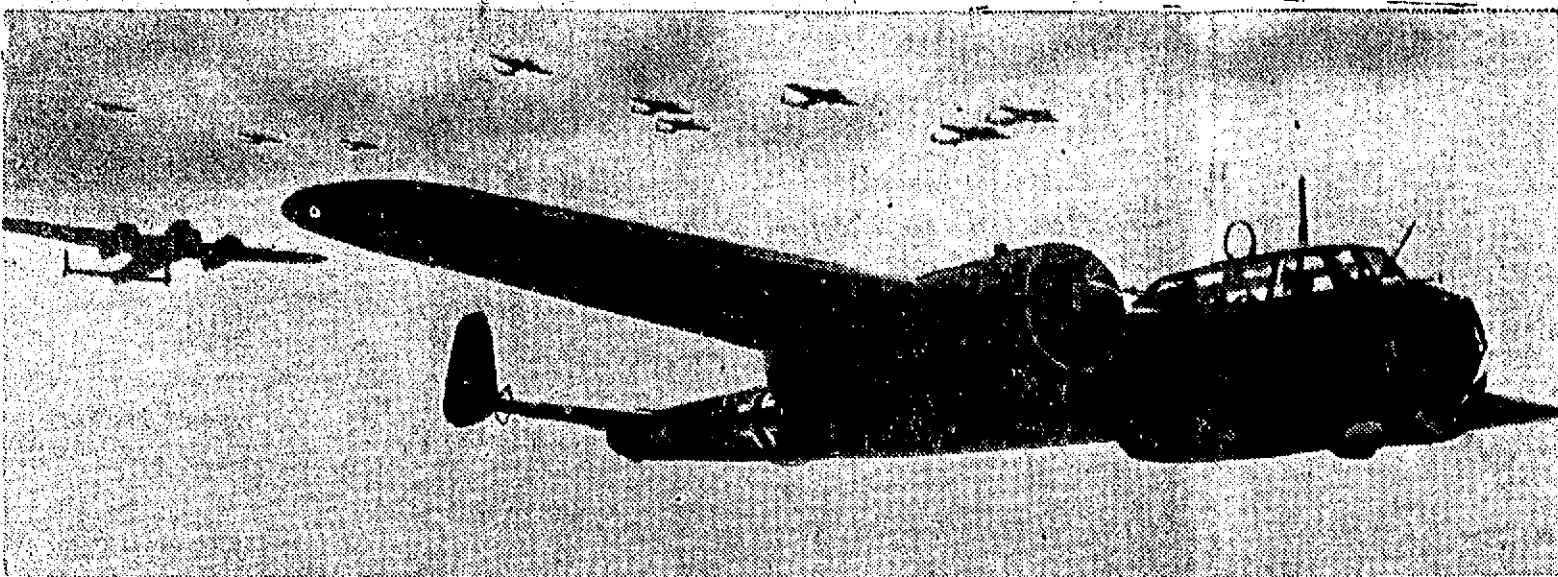

When you go to the polls on August 27th cast your vote for a young man that has fought his way into the runoff without the support of any political organization.

Vote for a young man who has run a clean race . . . is well qualified . . . and will always appreciate what the voters of Hempstead County have done for him.

Death Flocks Over Britain

In disregard of huge losses suffered in previous mass attacks on England, flock after flock of Germany's sinister blackbirds, giant war planes like those above, continued their bombardment of the British Isles.

Britain Feeds to Help Morale

England Now Has Food Enough for 6 Months

By PAUL MANNING
NEA Service Staff Correspondent.

LONDON — Some 1,300,000 soldiers stand idle along England's coast defense zones because war has shifted from the Fighting Front to the Home Front.

Each day with increasing fury German air force strikes at convoy ships and open towns in an attempt to smash the weakest link in Britain's defense chain—the poor of England.

For it is the poor, the man in the street and his family, who will decide the outcome of this war by choosing to fight—or quit—when the going gets tough.

It's not a question of character. It's a matter of economics and food. For as food becomes scarce and prices boom upward, the lower third of the population can't afford milk, vegetables, meat and the other energy foods. They fill up on potatoes and starches, are overcome by lassitude and the "will to win" evaporates.

Germany learned this bitter lesson in the last great war. England came within two weeks of learning it when the U-boat campaign of 1917 nearly drove the little island to its knees.

England Has Six Months Food

At the moment England has enough food stored in her great warehouses to last six months. But if Germany succeeds in cracking the convoy system for any period, England's big problem will be how to allot the food properly to the very low income group.

For ration books only make food available. They don't help to buy expensive milk, vegetables, eggs and bacon for a family of six living on an earned income of seven dollars a week.

Keenly aware of the potential dynamite in this problem, Ministry of Food officials tried nearly every plan in the books so far except community feeding. They have tried to peg the price of food at a reasonable level by giving wholesalers some 240 million dollars a year. They have provided expectant and nursing mothers as well as children under five with near-free milk. And in September calcium and vitamin B1 in tablet form is scheduled to be placed in all bread baked for public consumption.

Yet during the past three weeks milk, vegetables, bacon, eggs, butter and living costs in general have increased four per cent over the six per cent jump in June.

The only answer apparently if food becomes tighter is to start community feeding on a wide scale. That, the Ministry of Food is about ready to admit after studying the private feeding experiment now being conducted at the 1200-family slum clearance housing development in London's Delgarno Gardens Estate.

Dusty, a four-footed veteran of the air, looks on as his master, Hank Ringer of the Hudson Flying club at Dallas, Texas, checks on the dog's total number of flying hours. Dusty's record is nearing the 200-hour mark, according to Ringer. Of course, Dusty just rides in the plane, his master handles the controls.

This experiment, started by women volunteers with professional kitchen experience, has been most successful. Excellent meals for ten, twelve and fourteen cents, complete with meat, vegetables, potatoes and dessert have been served to nearly 2500 people a day since the project started.

Kitchen Loss First Week

For the first week the kitchen operated at a loss, but by the end of the fourth week sufficient profit was made to pay a return on the initial investment in kitchen ranges and to cause the Ministry of Food to hope that a solution to the national food problem had been found.

Previously the ministry had surveyed all centers where community feeding might be carried on in the event of a city-wide bombing.

These centers will be used when and if it becomes necessary to start community kitchens.

Ministry officials see only one possible snag to the plan. "Until a real crisis develops, there is natural reluctance on the part of a herd at family meal time. The Delgarno experiment has been so successful because a family could take it or leave it alone," a ministry official said.

was agreed that each case must be investigated in order to separate the wheat from the chaff.

Few people stop to consider that foreign governments, especially those at war, in selecting agents to work in America never employ a person that is queer or for any other reason is apt to attract attention. Very few selected are of the same nationality or blood strain as the nation which they represent. When Germany goes to select an agent to work in America a non-German is always employed, never a German. The same is true of Italy and the others. They all seek agents that are as near like the average American citizen as can be found. They don't want, and won't have, individuals who because of their blood strain or other peculiarity are sure to attract attention and certain to be watched. It follows therefore that most local community spy scares are without foundation.

The conference also agreed that trained operators are needed to detect and track down actual agents working in this country to destroy the American form of government. Amateur, self-appointed detectives usually do more harm than good and succeed in most cases only in tracking down some queer but harmless person, or in causing the unnecessary embarrassment of some loyal American citizen of German or Italian descent. You would be surprised how many people write in to the government each day asking that they be appointed some kind of special agent and given a badge. Not always, but too often, all they wish to do is to pry into their neighbor's private affairs with some pretext of authority. It goes without saying that all such requests must be denied as experts and experts alike are needed.

As far as the attitude of the state officials are concerned, it seems to me that there is a widespread desire on the part of state officials and other citizens to aid the Federal Government in its task. However more information is needed as to where and in what manner the state and local officials and citizens can be of assistance. I have always believed, and the majority of the conference agreed with me on this point, that except by secrecy may be required from the standpoint of the public interest, all pertinent information whatever it may be, with respect to the national defense program should not only be released to the public regularly but that important information should be repeated persistently and hammered home again and again.

The conference also considered the treatment of aliens, their registration and their position in the community and in industry. On June 28 of this year, the Federal Alien Registration Act of 1940 became law. This law provides for the registration of all aliens beginning August 27, 1940. It is the joint task of the Federal and State governments to reassure the alien that registration is a friendly act, an effort to identify those who are friendly to our national institutions, and to spare them from harassment and persecution. It should be borne in mind by all concerned that the term "alien" is not synonymous with "fifth Columnist," and that the Federal government is not preparing concentration camps for aliens. In this connection it might also be said that it is not desirable policy to bring pressure on aliens to become citizens. Citizenship should be sought, not forced.

For the first week the kitchen operated at a loss, but by the end of the fourth week sufficient profit was made to pay a return on the initial investment in kitchen ranges and to cause the Ministry of Food to hope that a solution to the national food problem had been found.

"Sausage Fence" Target of Nazis

The efficiency of Britain's balloon barrage in coastal defense was indicated by Germany's determined efforts to smash it by recent mass aerial attacks along the southeast coast. Lines of "sausages," like those above, trail long steel cables which enmesh enemy planes.

'Going Dutch' Now Fashion

It Keeps Up the Trend to Personal Budgeting

AP Feature Service

The American way these days includes a lot of going dutch.

This paying your own way started like a lot of other American habits—because of necessity. It's in keeping with the trend to personal budgeting. When business girls go to lunch frequently with men who earn about the same, it's one-sided for the man to have to buy lunch each time.

It's desirable that women have a definite understanding with the men before time to pay the check.

Even in this 20th century some men hesitate to say anything to women about sharing expenses, although they'll do it freely with one mother.

There's no excuse for arguing at the cashier's counter. Unless the girl has the thing settled before then, she ought to let the man pay the check—even if she pays him later. The tip should be shared, too, in such cases.

Some women insist on bumming cigarettes, and the men don't like it. In some sections of the country the woman who bums cigarettes is considered a grubber, no matter how polite and considerate she may be at other times.

It's almost always up to the woman to suggest paying her way.

Office parties can be more frequent and more fun if she does.

When the crowd is going to the beach or the amusement park together, it's nice for one woman to make a friendly suggestion, first to the other women and then to the men.

Men usually are more thoughtful than women about paying their share of expenses. A man who has frequent meals at the home or apartment or a girl who does her own cooking buys the steak or dessert occasionally. The good part about it is that he remembers to tell his hostess in advance.

for the first time in fifteen years put foot on American soil.

She smiled prettily for the ship news photographers and said, "I'm so glad to be back in America—so proud that I'm an American citizen."

Mrs. Plain Jones read that charming statement in her morning paper and commented intelligently: "She is, huh. Well, it took her quite a while to make up her mind."

WE THE WOMEN

By RUTH MILLETT

Mrs. Plain Jones has always been glad to be an American. She has lived here always, and her life has been as American as a church social. She has always cooked American food, worn American-made clothes, ridden in an American-manufactured car, and she isn't even self-conscious when she has to ask a waiter to think on a foreign-language menu.

Her husband has played his little part in American industry, and paid (with only a normal amount of grumbling) all the taxes demanded of him.

Their children were sent to public schools—and without the snobbish apology: "I think it is good for children to know all kinds of people."

Mrs. Hyphenated-Jones has lived in Europe for fifteen years. And for fifteen years she has shunned everything American—but dividend checks. For fifteen years she has kept as quiet as possible about being an American. To be taken for a native of her adopted country (which, unfortunately, she never was) would have been the highest compliment she could imagine.

Suddenly She Sees the Light
The other day Mrs. Hyphenated Jones stepped off a boat, crowded with other one-time Americans, and

To All The Democratic Voters Of Hempstead County

We are now in the closing days of this campaign. Do Not be Misled by Last Minute Campaign Stories.

Up to the present this has been a clean campaign between gentlemen. As for my part, I intend to keep it that way. On August 13 we had four men in this race. The two low men were dropped. AS GOOD SPORTS, THEY SHOULD NOW STAND ON THE SIDELINES AND WATCH THE RACE RUN BY THE SURVIVING CONTESTANTS. But now they try to carry their votes over to him.

In other words, all three of my opponents are "ganging up" on me. Do you favor those tactics? Do you endorse that kind of sportsmanship? YOU, THE DEMOCRATIC VOTERS OF HEMPSTEAD COUNTY, ARE NOT TO BE CARRIED

NOW, LOOKING AT THOSE MERITS —

I am the same Elmer Brown who was born in Mine Creek Township in Hempstead County, Arkansas, nearly 32 years ago. My father was born in Redland Township. I went to school in Hempstead County, Arkansas. I have lived here all my life. My life is an open book.

I taught school at Guernsey, DeAnn, Blevins, Patmos, and Columbus. I carried every one of these boxes by an overwhelming vote in the August 13th election; and I am assured that I will carry them again. Of course I carried the Mine Creek box where I was born and raised. In fact, I carried

FROM PILLAR TO POST BY ELIMINATED CANDIDATES. You exercised your independent choice on August 13, and I ask you now to exercise your independent choice again on August 27.

I have not said an unkind word about any of my three opponents, but they are now criticising me and seeking to prejudice the voters against me. I want the support of every Democratic voter in Hempstead County. Regardless of how you voted for any other candidate in any other race—state or county—I appeal to you, Mr. and Mrs. Voter, to support me in this race. I wear the collar of no man. I am running on my own merits.

27 of the 37 precincts in this county on August 13 and received 728 more votes than my nearest opponent. In a four-man race, I lacked less than 350 votes of receiving a clear majority out of the total of 4336 votes.

I served one year as Desk Sergeant on the City Police Force in the City of Hope, Arkansas, and carried five out of the seven boxes in the City of Hope, Arkansas. My opposition is now trying to capitalize on the fact that I served at one time on the City Police Force of the City of Hope. Do you believe in slurring law-enforcement work, or honorable and necessary occupation?

Will you stand for such tactics as that, Mr. and Mrs. Voter?

I appeal to every Democratic Voter in Hempstead County —

- (1) Do not be misled by last minute campaign stories.
- (2) Help make unanimous the decision of the plurality accorded me on August 13.

Respectfully,
